Violent Extremism in Albania: Drivers

Returnees from foreign conflict zones:
Over 70 people returned to Albania from foreign conflicts, particularly from Syria and Iraq.

Post and pre-conflict context:
Political instability and inadequate reconciliation caused by previous conflicts have polarised communities along ethnic, religious, and cultural lines.

Socio-economic drivers:
High unemployment, limited trust in institutions, and established crime networks contribute to violent extremist narratives.
Current Programming: Systems Approach

National: Supporting the revision of the National Strategy and development of an Action Plan on R&R and PCVE; developing the Standard Operating Procedures on R&R; building the capacity of central level R&R actors.

Municipality: Developing guidelines for local authorities for R&R and building capacity.

Community: Reducing the stigmatisation of returnees; increasing inter-religious tolerance; building capacity of women on R&R; providing access to a free counselling line for PVE and R&R related issues.

Individual: Providing direct support to returnees and vulnerable people including medical, psycho-social, educational, administrative and livelihood support.

Key Outputs

- 358 participants in meetings with community leaders
- 37 households of returnees receiving tailored support
- 9 women’s councils established
- 210 religious leaders trained on PVE
- 322 calls addressed through the counselling line
- CLWG provides training to women on PVE and R&R to women in seven districts in Albania. Most participants were more welcoming to returnees after being provided more knowledge on VE and the R&R process. CLWG aims to improve their knowledge and empower them to become agents of change in the community so as to foster an enabling environment for returnees.

Key achievements

- In Albania and Kosovo, our partners have been using art therapy for returnees. The methodology uses the creative process of art to improve and enhance the physical, mental and emotional well being of children.
- Terre des Hommes Albania has supported the revision of the National Strategy on PCVE (2022–2026) and its action plan (2022–2024). The draft documents are currently under review with the relevant government institutions and will be made available for public consultation before adoption in late 2022.
- Regional synergies among GCERF partners in the Western Balkans are steadily growing. GCERF partner Community Development Fund in Kosovo contributed to frontliner networking events organised by IDM partner Observatory for Children’s Rights in Albania.
- To ensure continuity in their efforts, GCERF partners in Albania have developed tools to support P/CVE and R&R at the national, community and individual levels. Manuals and guidelines are always launched in combination with a training to ensure adequate understanding.

Once they understood [the concepts of] foreign terrorist fighters and rehabilitation and reintegration, they were more accepting of the idea of having these individuals return to their community.

Story of Change

When Violeta* first participated in one of the women’s council meetings in Yzberisht, she immediately stood out from the group, open-heartedly sharing her story and her motivation for participating. For her, and many women, the women’s councils provide a safe space for women from different backgrounds to discuss issues in the community. IDM partner Woman Center for Development and Culture Albania (WCDCA) is setting up 10 women’s councils across the country to empower women and increase their community engagement.

The women’s councils aim to improve the social cohesion and community agency of women, with the larger purpose of increasing community resilience and the level of acceptance for RFTFs and their families.

Violeta, a mother of two, was particularly drawn to the purpose of the programme because she empathised with the challenges of women and children who have undergone trauma. She realised that the challenges of returning women from Syria were not much different than what she had experienced herself when attempting to start a new life, leaving behind the trauma of her past. Being able to exchange ideas with like-minded women allowed Violeta to finally feel visible. Through the women’s council, she wants to support other women and encourage their community agency.

IDM developed a draft guideline for Local Public Safety Councils (LPSCs), a new concept in Albania that is currently being piloted in several municipalities with training support from Terre des Hommes Albania. The LPSCs, chaired by the local Mayor, is established to be the centre of local coordination and cooperation on preventing and countering local VE and other local crimes.

The draft regulation enables actors to identify who is responsible and for what, which makes their work more practical and easier to implement.

GCEF’s Added Value

GCEF focuses on building institutional capacity e.g., CSOs, and government agencies.

All project design and implementation are done in coordination with nationally-aligned, locally-led programmes.

GCEF invests in building a PVE-focused community of practice with CSOs, government agencies, and experts.

GCEF connects CSOs, communities, and other stakeholders with government and security actors, leading to better coordination and relationships.

Communities are at the forefront of project design and implementation, and the programme works with existing community structures for sustainability.

GCEF’s consortium model and capacity-building approach enables us to work in remote areas.
